A WORD FROM THE IACME PRESIDENT Michelle Adams

IACME to Offer Its First Webcast!

The IACME is excited to launch our first webcast. This webcast is being sponsored by Conference Plus so we can offer it at no cost. We hope that you and your colleagues join us November 16 at NOON central. Please share this information with other providers who may not be IACME members.

A Call to CME Providers:
Working Together to Address Public Health Issues
November 16, 2011
Noon (CST)

Have you discussed how to collaborate with other providers to address public health issues? Would you like to collaborate with internal or external groups to help address gaps in healthcare but aren't quite sure where to start?

This webcast will discuss how to utilize state and local health reports to identify gaps and needs, develop content, form partnerships, and create “non-educational” strategies. Faculty will discuss how public health reports can help providers identify factors outside their control that impact patient outcomes. In addition, they will share examples of how collaborations can help providers implement strategies to overcome barriers to change.

Mary Martin Lowe, PhD will serve as the webcast leader and facilitator.
